SEBSS Ltd is a Company limited by guarantee under the Corporations Act 2001 and the liability of members is limited as provided by the Constitution.

2. The Essence of South East Brisbane Steiner School

i. Our Vision

Our vision is to provide a school that will empower students to meet their future with clarity, courage, creativity and compassion. By offering a curriculum, upheld by Steiner indications that are responsive to development of the whole child providing a positive foundation for purposeful and productive future citizens.

“Our highest endeavour must be to develop free human beings who are able of themselves to impart purpose and direction to their lives” - Steiner

ii. Our Mission

To provide a holistic education balancing academic, artistic and real-world learning, through pathways that inspire students' intrinsic love of learning, creativity and imagination. To honour with reverence the beauty of childhood and gradual unfolding of individual potential through a key focus on developing critical dispositions for contemporary education, such as resilience, confidence, empathy and creative thinking.

(Our Vision and Mission is further explored and informed by our values and principles.)

iii. Values and Principles

- Developing critical dispositions to be inquisitive and resilient learners through engagement in authentic projects and real-world contexts.
- Learning is offered through an integrated curriculum which provides the hooks for engagement, builds social skills and contexts for learning through a seamless and authentic approach.
- Steiner’s indication regarding the 3-fold human being, learning through embodiment of the thinking, feeling and willing through engagement using head, heart and hands.
- Through music and The Arts children are offered creative ways to develop their imagination.
- Respect, joy, integrity, resilience and compassion are core values that are reinforced through all learning endeavours.
- The uniqueness of every child is nourished, so their work and play is personally meaningful as individuals who belong to a community and their inner reflection becomes an outer expression of goodness to the world.

- The physical space and natural environment are revered for their aesthetic beauty, a place to connect mind, body and soul in the spirit of cooperation, appreciation and learning harmoniously.
- The natural authority of the teacher leads each child through their different developmental phases and priorities, indicated by Rudolf Steiner, at all times serving to enhance their intellectual, physical, emotional and spiritual ways of being.
- To provide a school that provides a supportive environment that promotes equity and excellence, confident and creative individuals who are successful lifelong learners, and active and informed members of the community aligned with the Alice Springs Mparntwe Education Declaration, 2019.

Goal 1: The Australian education system promotes excellence and equity

Goal 2: All young Australians become:

- confident and creative individuals
- successful lifelong learners
- active and informed members of the community.
- The school upholds that all children including children with a disability, have the same rights to education. Each child's inalienable right to an education is protected by the Disability Discrimination Act (1992) and the Disability Standards for Education (2005). Equitable pedagogies require making reasonable adjustments and offering multiple pathways so that all children, including diverse learners can access meaningful learning, participate fully in the curriculum, and develop a sense of belonging and self-efficacy.
- The Aboriginal Cultural Heritage Act (2003) upholds the importance of recognising, protecting and conserving Aboriginal cultural heritage. We recognise and respect that Aboriginal people are the keepers and knowledge holders of their culture. Two ways of learning, including rich oral traditions and past-times enriches children's learning opportunities. Australian Indigenous culture is represented within the third cultural space, which is the axis point for conjoining cultures, through not knowing, innovation and creation that is guided Aboriginal people, QLD Government (2011).
- Childhood is protected through an understanding of the child's awakening consciousness and matching learning to children's changing needs and interests.

- The Steiner approach upholds “it takes a village’ adage where parents and caregivers are identified as valued first educators of their child. Partnering with families and the embodiment of local community knowledge ensures that learning is reflective of the contextual and cultural pastimes, traditions, languages and ways of being and is accessible, made visible and shared.
- We value ethical, sustainable and joyful living where all children are learning through their own unique pathways and will flourish.

▪ Principles of Our Governance

The board will:

- guide and inspire the organisation by focusing on setting strategic direction and policy to attain long-term outcomes for the school, not on the operational means of attaining those outcomes;
- govern with a sense of collective responsibility. It will use the expertise of individual directors to enhance the ability of the board as a body, but will not substitute individual judgments for the board's collective considerations;
- hold itself accountable to govern with excellence. This discipline will apply to matters such as attendance, preparation for meetings, decision-making principles, respect of roles, and ensuring an appropriate skill mix of directors and the continuity of governance capability;
- continue to develop and improve itself through ongoing education and evaluation of board and individual director effectiveness.

▪ A Balanced Approach to Board Leadership

In practice, this means that the board provides value to the leadership and governance of South East Brisbane Steiner School in three ways:

1. Generative Thinking – by regularly considering and exploring broad issues, ideas, opportunities and challenges that could influence or change how South East Brisbane Steiner School undertakes its work. This thinking is conducted at each board meeting and in particular at the annual Strategy meetings.
2. Setting Strategic Direction – by considering key opportunities and challenges both within and outside South East Brisbane Steiner School and making decisions on initiatives to address them. These decisions are made in accordance with approved budgets.
3. Fiduciary Oversight – by being accountable for the financial, risk and reputational health of South East Brisbane Steiner School. This is achieved at board meetings and through the work of the Audit and Risk Management Committee.

The board must balance these roles in all its decisions with guidance and support from management.
